its leaders wisely see fit to keep their own coun sels. When that convention assembles, it will clared to be proper, wise and beneficial to the state, will be maintained on every stump in

He died instantly. Lieutenant Zeilin was a resident of this city, and a son of Brigadier General Zeilin (retired) of the marine corps. He was, with possibly two exceptions, the most popular officer of the marine corps ever known in Washington. He was young, handsome and warm-hearted. His death causes universal regret. HOUSE.-Immediately after the reading of the journal a demand made by Mr. Bouck for the regular order prevented the Speaker from recognizing any of the members who, bills in band, were pressing forward to seek unanimous consent.

The morning hour having been dispensed with a contest arose as to what business should be considered by the House. A motion to proceed to business on the Speaker's table made by Mr. Carlisle was antagonized by Mr. Singleton with the inter-oceanic canal resolution and by Mr. Hooker with the Choctaw bill. Finally, Mr. Carlisle's motion was agreed to, and the House, at 12 o'clock, proceeded to dispose of business on the Speaker's table.

The Democratic Outlook.

JUDGE FIELDS' CHANCES. During the present week democratic conventions have been held in the states of Alabama. Arkansas and Colorado. Nothing has been learned as to the presidential preferences of the delegates from Arkansas. The entire week has been passed in balloting for candidates for state offices. The Colorado delegation to Cincinnati is solid for Judge Field. Information received from reliable persons in Alabama is to the effect that the four delegates at large from the state and a majority of the district delegates are for Field. The friends of Mr. Field expect that the Georgia convention, which meets on the 9th instant, will select delegates dition very critical. Did you send Rice, and when will he arrive? John G. Thompson." are solid in his support. There has been a warm controversy over the standing of the California delegation. Tilden and Field have each claimed a majority of the delegates from that state. Late and complete advices by mail from the Pacific slope to friends of Judge Field here satisfy them that the delegation is unanimous in his favor. The Field "boom" is certainly being worked up with great activity, and there will be few candidates before the convention, who, in the event of a general smash-up of the more prominent candidates, will attract a stronger vote than he.

District in Congress.

BILLS PASSED BY THE HOUSE. The House to-day took from the Speaker's table and passed two bills relating to the District. THE PROPOSED NEW MUNICIPAL CODE. The Senate to-day authorized the District committee to sit during the recess of Congress to consider the proposed new code of laws for the District. The code has been referred to a sub-committee, consisting of Senators Harris, Whyte and McMillan, who will hold sessions during the recess and report to the full committee next session. Society Notes. Senators Ransom and Williams will in the course of a fortnight accompany the colleague of the former to Louisville, where Senator Vance will claim a bride whom he met in Washington last winter. Senator Vance stands very high in the estimation of all who know him well, and many good wishes have already been tendered

The guests present included many of the prominent persons now in that city, temporarily as well as resident. Mrs. Randall Gibson is at Fortress Monroe with her children. Her little girl is seriously ill. Her mother, Mrs. Montgomery, is with her, and Representative Gibson will soon join his family there. - Mrs. Pelouze and her daughters expect to go to Fortress Monroe next week to spend some time. One of the young ladies is now making a visit in the west. Political Notes.

PURSUIT OF HOSTILE INDIANS .- The following dispatch from Col. Hatch, dated Fort Craig, w Mexico, May 3d, has been forwarded to to the War department. Four companies, reduced to about 100 men, and Indian scouts, are in pursuit of Indians going to Mexico. There are 100 warriors in the party. The Indians are are probably Mexican Indians, and not as Lieut. Maury supposed, Victoria's main force, as they have many wounded. May catch them before they reach the line. My orders are such that I can follow them no further, and must look out for Indian bands in the mountains here. Cusack, with four companies-120 men-is doing hard scouting and good work east of the Rio Grande. Casualties in my command should give me 50 Indian scouts, more valuable now than five times the number recruits. The surprise made by the scouts on May 24th, is more serious to the ostiles than at first supposed. Following is Lieut. Maury's telegram, who commanded the recruits. [It is dated Fort Cummings, May 31st.] Trails leave from west side of Cook's Canon straight for Florida mountains. The hostiles are making for Mexico for benefit of wounded. Trail does not seem to consist of as many as formerly. Think trail was made by Victoria's party, almost entirely.

AT THE WHITE HOUSE TO-DAY. - Senators Anthony, Burnside, Saunders, Booth and Call, and Representatives Page, Urner, Everett and Bailey called on the President to-day.

THE COMMISSION TO CHINA. - The Richmond, flag-ship of the Asiatic station, has been directed by the Navy department to take on board the members of the Chinese commission to negotiate a newitreaty upon their arrival in China; to go wherever the commission desires, and to afford them every facility for the prosecution of their work.

THE INTEROCEANIC CANAL Monroe doctrine business was finally settled for the present session in the House to-day. BEDLAM!

Special To The Star.

The Battle of the Giants. The greatest scene which ever occurred in a national convention took place between 12 and 2 o'clock this morning, amounting almost to a battle between the contending factions. Long John Wentworth says he has never seen anything like it in forty years, and Pixley, a California delegate, declared that it looked like a scene of terror from the French revolution. Wild and Thrilling Scenes. It was so prolonged and excited that the coolest men were dazed and stood terror stricken in their seats. Men and women went into hysteries, and rushed around and shouted like maniacs. People who heard the rush and roar five blocks away crowded into the convention without tickets, as the police seemed too much startled to detain any one. It would seem that the animal spirits and wondrous lung power of the convention were reserved, after all, for the closing debate on the 18 anti-Grant contestants from Illinois. Matters were comparatively quiet during the speeches, although the speakers on each side spoke with more than usual power. But when Emory Storrs, of Chicago, the last of the four. took his stand on the edge of the press platform and proceeded in his peculiarly eloquent style to laugh down the arguments of his opponents, the enthusiasm increased each second When, improving his advantage, and in a voice that overcame the acoustic difficulties of the hall, he spoke of Blaine and told the supporters of that gentleman to nominate him if they could, the tempest opened in good earnest with stirring cheers and loud verbal interruptions from the gallery. Mr. Storrs, turning to the cheering crowd said: "And when the gentlemen who are cheering in the gallery to-night are reposing under the soft summer sky, tired of politics and disgusted with its fatigues, you will find the followers of the grand old silent soldier awake by their camp-fires, and carrying the banner of the sluggard forward to triumph." "Hell Broke Loose," At the conclusion of the closing sentence. "Hell or something that very closely resembled that territory," says the Chicago Times, "broke loose, beginning on the east side of the hall. spreading to the floor and finally infecting every part of the vast audience until it seemed to have gone absolutely mad for the time being. The adherents of both the renowned candidates vied with each other in roaring like wild bulls, or perhaps it might be true to say like an immense band of wild Indians sounding their ferocious war whoops at a gigantic scalp dance.'

The delegates from the different states and territories seized their banners and waved them on high while everybody on the floor and in the galleries waved handkerchiefs, or hats or umbrellas, or sticks, or whatever they could lay hands on to indicate their preferences. The continued roaring, which lasted three-quarters of an hour without official interruption, sounded like the storm of the battle field itself. Conspicuous among the leaders of the scene were Roscoe Conkling, Long John Wentworth and John Logan on the floor, and Bob Ingersoll and Mr. Conger on the platform. The flashing eyes and scarlet faces of the excited multitude showed to what a pitch of passion the once cool and dignified republican party had come.

Wild Women, Too. Even womanhood for a time lost its delicacy and dignity, and showed as much insanity. standing on chairs and flourishing symbols, as the men themselves. They were few, of course, in proportion to the number of women who sat ther eawed and amazed by the Titanic uproar. Ten thousand people were on their feet, standing upon tables and chairs and the backs of the benches, waving handerkerchiefs, canes. hats, umbrellas, overcoats, shawls, papers, in fact, everything could that could be seen or used to add to the confusion and excitement. The flags, with which the building is decorated, were torn down and waved aloft. Crazy women tore off their bonnets, and swung them by their strings; and crazy men pulled their coats from their strings; their shoulders and waved them in the air. The noise was absolutely deafening; and no one knows, till he hears it, how much noise 10,000 people can make, shouting at the tops of their lungs, pounding the floor with their feet, and banging the resonant pine benches with boards torn from the backs and arms. It was bedlam and beyond bedlam. It was like nothing that was ever seen or described, and any attempt to describe it would be a failure.

One woman on the stage, a Mrs. Deane, of New Jersey, crazed with the excitement, tore down flags and shook them in the air. She finally climbed to the pedestal of the Goddess of Liberty that stands behind the chair-man's desk, and there conspicuously to all the audience she swung her flags and bonnet, and screamed with all her voice. She was finally taken down by Sergeant-at-Arms Strong, Gover-nor Jewell, Congressman Aldrich, and others, and placed in a seat, but her histerics returned. and she snatched the flags from the men who had them and sprang to the pedestal again. She was a second time taken down and compelled to keep her seat, but was finally taken from the building before she could be controlled.

My Lord Roscoe Unbends. Senator Conkling stood upon a chair and waved the banner, which, hanging upon a pole, was placed to mark the seats of the New York delegation. When his arms were tired with holding this heavy banner, he waved his hat in one hard and his handkerchief in the other. The dignified gentleman in the New York delegation shouted with the Senator in the Pennsylvania delegation. General Beaver waved his crutches in the air, and Senator Cameron swung his hat, standing on top of a chair. Long John Wentworth's huge body and conspicuous head rose up among the Illinois delegates like a glant among pigmies. He stood upon a chair for twenty minutes, with his cane in one hand and his old brown hat on the end of it, and his red hemmed handkerchief in the other, forgetting all parliamentary decorum.

Reporters Cool, as Usual. The delegates began to sing "John Brown" and "Rally Round the Flag," and in all that yelling, rapping, swaying crowd the only men who kept quiet were the reporters, who were compelled in the midst of the deafening turmoil to attend to the business of furnishing the news for the public. It was midnight when the first thunder peal was heard, and it was half an hour after 1 o'clock when the chairman began to show that he still lived by hammering his desk with the formidable gavel. He could not succeed, however, immediately, because the delegates from Maine, California, Nebraska, Nevada, Kansas, Virginia and New Mexico, bearing aloft the banners which designated their places in the hall, formed a procession, which, amid monstrous confusion, marched around the hall

Peace at Last. Doubtless the disorder would have lasted all night had not Gen. Raum, with an unexpected sagacity, proposed three cheers for the victorious sagacity, proposed three cheers for the victorious candidate. This parting volley of sounds seemed to satisfy the frenzied assemblage, and Mr. Storrs concluded his speech in careful sentences, fearful that he might create another scene like the one which he had so ably succeeded in producing. There never was, and perhaps, unless in the same body, possibly never will be such another spectacle. In fact the scene put Grant and Blaine in nomination, and the speeches after this will be tame in comparison.

Speculations and Probabilities.

GRANT GAINING.

ABOUT DARK HORSES

Special To The Star.

CHICAGO, JUNE 5, 1880. There is the Calm of Exhaustion in the convention this morning. The situation seems to be about this:

The first ballot will be taken towards evening. It may be followed by two or three, and if there is then no choice, an adjournment till Monday will probably follow. It is claimed on each side that the great struggle of last night puts Grant and Blaine to the front, and rules out the dark horse. What the Grant Men Claim. The Grant men say that their success is assured in the fact that every southern delegate finally will vote for Grant as the only man who can give them security enough to insure a republican party in the South. Then they add that part of the Ohio vote and all the Massa. chusetts vote will go to Grant, and this will nominate him. What the Blaine Men Claim. The Blaine men claim that they have gained in the last twenty-four hours, and that Blaine is the second choice of enough men to nominate him. But in the face of this they do not deny that eighteen of the leading Sherman delegations from South and North Carolina will go to Grant, which will turn the tide to him. Unblanketing the Dark Horse. The republicans who do not believe either can be elected, are working earnestly for a dark horse, and Garfield and Hawley are talked of as a ticket. Edmunds is still favorably regarded, and Windom is a possibility. Washburne is out of the question. Grant's friends believe he has betrayed them. His headquarters have been virtually abandoned. G. W. Associated Press Report.

THE FOURTH DAY. A Thunder Storm and a Dark Horse. CHICAGO, June 5, 11:15 a. m.—The delegates are steadily assembling. The galleries are filling rapidly, despite heavy showers of rain and sultry atmosphere, only partially relieved by occasional thunder. The usual rounds of ap plause were given to notable delegates as they entered the hall. Mr. Garfield especially was received with much enthusiasm, probably because in some contingencies he is considered : possible winning dark horse in the presidential Opening Proceedings. The convention was called to order at 11:15, at which time the delegates were generally in their seats, and an immense audience in the galleries and on the rear of the platform. Prayer was offered by Rev. John R. Baxter, of Wash-

A Prayer for Wisdom and Peace. The Rev. Mr. Baxter's prayer included the following: "God, Thou creator of all things and mighty sustainer of all Thy creations, we begin this day with thankful acknowledgement of Thy mercies; we commend unto Thy favor and grace the members of this convention. Rule. we pray Thee, in all their counsels; guide al their deliberations and declare through their vote for the wisest, for the truest, for the best man to lead this great party in the contest which awaits it Forbid that the cry of passion should be louder here than the calm voice of duty. Forbid that prejudice should warp judgment and compromise principle nor permit per sonal preferences to impair or imperil the peace and harmony, the enthusiasm, the unity of purpose or fidelity of trust of this convention.

The Kansas Case. The chair stated the question to be on the report of the committee on credentials in the case of Kansas. Mr. Conger briefly explained and sustained the majority report. The convention agreed to limit debate on Kansas to forty Mr. Plumb, of Kansas, replied in behalf of the sitting members and sustaining the minority Applause for Mr. Conkling. Mr. Conkling coming in while Mr. Plumb was speaking stopped to salute him and was greeted with applause from the Grant sympathizers. Mr. Conkling Denies the Report About Withholding Grant's Name.

[Mr. Conkling privately denies emphatically the report said to be published at Baltimore, stating that he had received a letter from Gen. Grant requesting him to consult Logan, and if it was thought best to withhold his name from presentation to the convention.] Debate on the Kansas Case

Mr. Houk, of Tennessee, said he did not know which side of the pending question he was on, and asked to be allowed to speak two minutes The chair said the gentleman must be on one side or the other to entitle him to occupy any of the time alloted to this debate, (Renewed Mr. Houk was allowed to proceed, and in con-clusion he said he would sustain the majority report, because there was no minority report, but he did not want to be understood thereb as condemning the action of the Congressional districts in Kansas

Mr. Bateman, of Ohio, said he did not want to, in the tactics of Tammany hali, establish and maintain in a republican organization, to override the true sentiment of the people themselves as Tammany, in New York city, overrode the solid republicans of Harlem Bridge. Therefore, he was for the majority report. Majority Report Sustained.

The question was then taken by call of states and the majority report in the Kansas case was sustained—yeas 476, nays 184. It was noticeable that in the Kansas case New York cast only 22 votes in the affirmative. So the majority report, which admits 4 Grant men from Kansas, was adopted, the committee on credentials holding that they were endtled to seats under the principle of district representa-tion. The failure of the New York Grant men to vote is understood to be caused by the desire to have the majority report sustained, while their votes for it would be inconsistent with their vote in the Illinois cases.

The West Virginia Case. The next case taken up was the contest in the third district of West Virginia. The com-mittee recommended the retention of the sitting members who are Blaine men.
Mr. Conger explained and supported the majority report. Mr. Clayton, of Arkansas, moved to substitute the minority report for that of the maiute the minority report for that of the majority, (the minority report recommending the admission of the contestants.)

Mr. Raum, of Illinois, insisted that the West Virginia case stood precisely on all fours with the Illinois and Kansas cases, and as the contestants from Illinois and Kansas had been admitted these from West Virginia should also be.

Mr. Cudman, of Massachusetta, urged that port. He could not understand how the committee who reported in favor of the eighteen contestants in Illinois could have voted against the contestants from Kansas.

Mr. Hagans, of West Virginia, sustained the majority report, urging that these contestants failed to prove before the committee that they seemed the votes of a majority that they

from the congressional districts.

Mr. Conger stated that the committee were nearly equally divided in this case, and rather intimated that he was not himself clear in opinion as to the true merits of the case. (The contestants in the case are Sherman men). After considerable cross-firing between different delegates as to facts of purely local interest, Mr. Haymond, of California, said that whichever way the convention should vote in this case that vote could sustain the principle of district representation. Each side here claims to be district representatives, and the only con-troverted question is whether the sitting or the contesting delegates were the legally chosen representatives of the districts involved.

The vote was then taken by call of states upon substituting the minority for the majority West Virginia Contestants Admitted The report of the minority of the committee on credentials, seating the two contestants from West Virginia, was adopted.

"THE SILENT MAN." Grant's Whereabouts and Whatabouts.

[Special to The Star.] CHICAGO, June 5.—A special dispatch to the Chicago Times, dated Galena to-day, says:
General Grant is in Galena. He spends most of the time during business hours at General Rowley's office, receiving and discussing the telegrams from Chicago. He is very reticent in the expression of opinions, and says he knows nothing more of Conkling's plans and purposes than any outsider, but he thinks Mr. Conkling knows what he is about pretty well.

The ex-President does not show any anxiety or nervousness about matters political or otherwise.

LIEUT. ZEILIN'S SAD DEATH. Thrown from his Horse and Killed. New York, June 5.—A Norfolk (Va.) special says: Lieut, W. F. Zeilin, the marine officer on the United States receiving ship Franklin, and son of Brigadier General Zeilin, United States marine corps of Washington, was thrown by a runaway horse, on which he was riding on the Ocean View road, yesterday evening and in-stantly killed by falling on his head and having his neck broken. The body was brought to the Atlantic Hotel last night, and will be forwarded to Washington to-morrow. NORFOLK, Va., June 5,-Lieut, W. F. Zeilin, of the U.S. Marine corps and attact receiving ship Franklin, of this station a son of Gen. Zeilin, of Washington, met with a terrible and fatal accident last night while returning; from Ocean View. Just before reaching the cottage toll bridge three miles from this city his horse a very spirited animal took fright and ran away. Lieut, Zeilin retained his presence of mind and failing to control his horse he called to the toll keeper to shut the gate hoping thereby to stop the horse. One half of the gate was closed and while the boy in charge was closing the other half the horse strucked the closed part throwing Lieut. Zeilin on the bridge with such force that he was dead in 5 minutes. A cut over his right eye was the only external injury that was apparent. Death resulted from the breaking of his neck. An inquest was held at 2 o'clock this morning and the body was brought to this city by Col. J. L. Broome, commandant of the marine corps at this station accompanied by his fellow officers of the Franklin. Lieut. Zellin was a young officer of much promise and was quite a favorite in naval circles. FOREIGN AFFAIRS.

The Church Bill in the Prussian Diet.

LONDON, June 5 .- A Berlin dispatch to the Standard says the committee of the Prussian diet to which was referred the church bill has decided in favor of three important clauses, The government owes this success to a coalition of the ultra conservatives and ultramontanes and Poles who make up eleven votes. The minority of ten consisted of liberals and free conservatives. The first of the three clauses makes the highest provincial official alone competent to appeal to the state authorities against ecclesiastical decisions. The second clause enacts that the power of secular courts is not to extend to displacing those who are incapable of filling their offices, and the third clause enables $250 for their appearance at the August term of e sovereign to replace deposed bishops

THE FERRY-COOPER SCANDAL Who Blacked the Senator's Eye!

Statement of an Indignant Husband and Father.

[Special Dispatch to The Evening Star.] MILWAUKER, June 5, 1880. -Sidney W. Cooper, father of Miss Nellie Cooper, publishes a card in the Milwaukee papers of this morning regarding the Cooper-Ferry scandal at the National Hotel publication, and then says: "There is much untruth in the foregoing statement. Let it suffice for the present that Thomas W. Ferry, a Senator from Michigan was struck by me in his room at the Nationa Hotel, Washington, and cut over his left eye, for an offence which he alone may describe. I accomplished what my daughter failed to accomplish. She could not obtain access to Ferry, and I had the great pleasure of doing the work.' "SIDNEY W. COOPER."

Note by a Star Reporter .- Mr. Sidney W. Cooper is a New Yorker, about 40 years of age. Mrs. Cooper is a daughter of Mrs. Martin, a lady of wealth, residing in Milwaukie. For some years past they have spent much time in Washington during the winter season, having their headquarters at the National Hotel.

Senator Ferry, who is a bachelor, has been on good terms with the Coopers, and it was noticed that he showed, at times, marked attention to the ladies, (the daughter being a young miss of about 15 years of age.) As to the origin of the difficulty, if any one knows anything about it, they carefully conceal it. Since the convergence, they carefully conceal it. Since the occurrence, which took place on the 23d of May, there have been a thousand and one rumors regarding it, some asserting the Senator was taken to task (for an alleged insult) by the daughter, who went to the Senator's room, where she drew a cowhide, and that he in attempting to get it from her struck the butt end of it in his eye. Others assert that she only gave the Senator a tongue-lashing. But, as will be seen above, the black eye was caused by Mr. Cooper himself. On the cause his card throws no light.

It is now remembered by many people in the hotel that on Sunday (the day of the occurrence) Mr. Cooper appeared much of the time to be in a deep study, and evidently was contemplating the attack, but he kept his own counsel and was not seen down stairs after the attack, (which occured about 9.30 or 10 o'clock) excep when hewent to druggist to get something to put on his hand until next morning, when, with his wife and daughter, accompanied by a friend, he walked over to the B. & P. depot and took his departure. A few days afterward an article having been published here regarding the affair, Senator Ferry denied it; and recently the explanation has been made that the Senator had had an altercation with a prominent southern republican, in which both received black eyes.]

THE FIGHTING FISHERMEN.-The Alexandria Gazette of last evening says: The case of Wm. H. Knight agat corge Hendrick, Richard Raymond, and winnam Day, charged with unlawful fishing in the berth of Knight, came up yesterday at Fairfax Court House, before Judge Sangster in chambers. The petitioners offered to prove that they were residents of Maryland; that they were not fishing in Knight's berth; that they were fishing in the berth rented by them from the owner, and that they were fish ing in the Potomac river, in the jurisdiction of the state of Maryland. Judge Sangster refused to hear the evidence on the points made in the petition because there were questions of fact involved for a jury to determine, and not for the court, on a writ of habeas corpus. The defendants appealed to Judge Keith, of the circuit court, and Hendricks and Raymond were bailed the court. This case is one of importance as te-ting the right of the proprietors of the fishing shores to prevent the gillers from trespassing upon their property.

The case, by consent of counsel on both sides, was submitted to the court, who held it under advisement until Thursterday morning's session. Judge Goldsborou in delivering the opinion of the court, said that there had been some conflicting testimony upon both sides, that the characters of neither the accused or the accusing parties had been suc-cessfully impeached, and that in such cases the court could only be guided by the general rule of law, that where there was the least doubt the defendant must be entitled to the benefit of it, and, therefore, directed the clerk to enter a verdict of "not guilty."
